BECKER DIES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Pays Extreme Penalty for Instigating Murder.

PREPARES BRIEF STATEMENT

Condemned Man's Wife Visits Governor Whitman and Makes Pathetic Appeal for Commutation to Life Imprisonment—New York Executive Again Declares His Belief in Becker's Guilt.

Ossining, N. Y., July 30.—Former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, twice convicted for instigating the murder of Herman Rosenthal, gambler, was coldly resigned to his fate. He went to the electric chair at 5:40 a. m.

Becker's last hope vanished when his wife arrived at Sing Sing prison at 11:30 p. m., bringing the news of the failure of her appeal to Governor Whitman for a commutation of sentence.

Extra precautions were taken to make sure that the appliances of the electric chair were in perfect condition.

Father James Curry of New York, who has been Becker's spiritual adviser ever since his first conviction, heard Becker's spiritual confession at 4 a. m. and gave him the Catholic communion.

On her arrival here Mrs. Becker went at once to her husband's cell to tell him of the unsuccessful result of her conference with Governor Whitman. She was accompanied by her counsel, John B. Johnson. Both declined to make any statement and hurried at once into the prison.

Priest Visits Prisoner.
Father James Curry was one of the doomed man's visitors. He left him a prayer book and testament marked with consoling passages which the prisoner promised to read.

Late in the afternoon his two brothers, Jackson and John Becker, and his widowed sister, Mrs. Katherine Geulgher, visited him and remained with him in his cell until long after his evening meal, which, though light, Becker ate with apparently his normal appetite. Mrs. Geulgher was weeping when she came out.

Dr. Charles W. Farr, the prison physician, and Dr. Henry Mereness, his assistant, made a customary physical examination of the prisoner. They reported that his pulse was normal.

"Becker seems to have a strong grip on himself," said Dr. Farr. "When we entered his cell he half smiled and said, 'Well, I suppose you've come to say goodbye?'"

Prison officials reported that, while he awaited the arrival of his wife somewhat impatiently, his composure was remarkable.

Negro Also Executed.

Becker was followed in the death chair by Samuel Haynes, a negro murderer, who killed a woman in Patterson, Putnam county. It was at Becker's own request that he was to be the first of the two to die. Twenty-seven witnesses—prison officials, physicians, priests and newspaper men—were present at the execution.

Almost at the moment he received the news of the failure of his appeal for clemency the prisoner gave out a letter he had written to Governor Whitman, in which he attacked the executive for having, as he indicated, given to the newspapers statements which cast a "foul aspersion on my character," and for which he demanded a retraction.

In this letter Becker again reiterated his innocence of the crime for which he has been convicted.

"To these charges and to all others I answered," the letter read, "by repeating solemnly, on the brink of the world to which you are sending me before my time, what was my constant answer while in the world:

"I am innocent as you of having murdered Herman Rosenthal or of having counseled, procured or aided his murder or having any knowledge of that dreadful crime."

MRS. BECKER VERY BRAVE

Shows No Effects of Strain on Leaving Prison.

Ossining, N. Y., July 30.—Deputy Warden Johnson announced that Becker has prepared a statement to be issued after the execution. He said the statement will be brief, but would not intimate what it contained.

Mrs. Becker said farewell to her husband at 12:30 a. m. She did not leave the prison, however, until 1:15 a. m.

John Becker, the condemned man's brother, and John Lynch, Mrs. Becker's brother, accompanied her.

She showed no effects of the mental strain to which she had been subjected.

HONOR CANADIAN PREMIER

Borden Is Granted Freedom of City by London.

London, July 30.—The highest honor of a municipality can give—the freedom of the city—was conferred by London on Sir Robert Borden, the Canadian premier.

Premier Asquith, A. Bonar-Law, secretary of the colonies, and other members of the cabinet, attended.

The city chamberlain on presenting the freedom of the city referred in particular to the splendid deeds accomplished by the Canadians at the front.

Germany Losing an Empire in Africa

Raider Koenigsberg

Gen. Botha

When the British monitors opened fire on the German raider, the Koenigsberg, in the Rufiji river in German East Africa, the other day, and after a remarkable battle tore her to bits almost the last defense of the Germans against British capture of the great African territory fell. Just a few days before that Gen. Botha, leading the forces of the Union of South Africa, had defeated the Germans, who had been trying to hold German Southwest Africa for the fatherland. He had won territory larger by half again than the German empire in Europe, and he had added that much to the British crown.

The defeat of the Koenigsberg will quickly be followed, it is believed, by the conquest of German East Africa, which is nearly twice the size of the German empire in Europe. Already Togoland, just west of Kamerun (but not shown on this map), a territory as large as Indiana, has fallen. Kamerun, which is much larger than the German empire in Europe, is about lost.

Thus Germany has practically lost an empire in Africa as large as the whole area of the United States east of the Mississippi river, and one-fourth as large as the whole territory of the Union including Alaska.

Whatever may be the settlement of the war there is no likelihood that Great Britain will give up any territory taken from the Germans in Africa. Thus, with the Union of South Africa, Bechuanaland, Rhodesia, German Southwest Africa, German East Africa, and British East Africa, she will have a contiguous empire as large as the United States.

The whole German dream of colonial empire which Kaiser Wilhelm has carefully built up for twenty years will have been dissipated.

DEMAND EXPLANATION FROM MEXICO

(By United Press)

Washington, July 30.—Urgent representations have been sent to the Zapataista government in Mexico City by the state department demanding an explanation of the assault upon Allen Mallory, U. S. mail carrier. His automobile was stopped between Pueblo and Mexico City.

RUSSIANS ARE PREPARING TO EVACUATE WARSAW

(By United Press)

London, July 30.—The dispatches this afternoon say the Russians have begun the evacuation of Warsaw by the removal of all public documents and treasures of the banks transferring the money to Petrograd. It is believed by tomorrow all things valuable for the Germans within the city will be removed. Prominent citizens are leaving on all trains. The military authorities are concentrating the trains for the removal of troops. The work of removing the heavy guns of Novo-Georgofsk is being pressed. The Germans hoped to capture the greatest booty at Novo-Georgofsk which is fortified. To hold Warsaw it is necessary to hold a considerable portion of Novo-Georgofsk intact until the last moment so the Russians can hold back the Germans till the Russians get away. Preparations are being made to explode all ammunition which is impossible to take away, making the German booty comparatively small.

ANOTHER WARSHIP SENT

(By United Press)

Washington, July 30.—The gunboat Nashville has been ordered to Cape Haitien from Santo Domingo to supplement the Eagle already there.

JAPANESE CABINET RESIGNS

Tokio, July 30.—Count Okuma, the Japanese premier, has tendered his resignation of himself and cabinet. The emperor is considering, but has as yet not accepted their resignation.

SWITZERLAND PROTESTS

London, July 30.—Switzerland has protested against Germany's violation of Swiss neutrality by her airmen.

Two Marines Are Killed

(By United Press)

Washington, July 30.—Two American marines were killed today fighting in Hayti.

BELGIAN STEAMER SUNK

London, July 30.—The Belgian steamer Prince Albert, struck a mine and was sunk. The crew of twenty-five was saved.

Other Ships Will Be Inspected

Washington, July 30.—Reports have reached the commerce department of other crank passenger ships besides the Eastland operated on the Great Lakes. The inspection of all such craft has been started.

CONFERENCE FAILS TO BRING RESULTS.

Berlin, July 30.—The conference between Ambassador Gerard and Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg was a protracted one, lasting an hour and a quarter.

The problems of the relations between Germany and the United States were generally and exhaustively discussed, but so far as can be ascertained the conference is not likely to lead to tangible results nor to any formal change in Germany's manner of conducting her submarine campaign.

A. J. EARLING.

Explains Why Milwaukee Road Cut Its Dividend.

ST. PAUL CUTS DIVIDEND

Action Due to General Business Stagnation, Says the President.

New York, July 30.—The directors of the St. Paul road declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent on the common stock. This is a reduction in the annual rate from 5 per cent paid since 1912 to 4.

A. J. Earling, president of the road, said the reduction in the dividend seems expedient to the directors in view of the decrease in operating income for the fiscal year just closed. This decline, Mr. Earling said, was due to general business stagnation, a large increase in taxes and charges for depreciation.

MEXICANS TRAMPLE ON AMERICAN FLAG

United States Citizen Also Assaulted by Zapatistas.

Washington, July 30.—"There is a genuine reign of terror in Mexico City in so far as legal procedure is concerned," reads a message to the department dated July 28, which also detailed an assault upon Allen Mallory, an American citizen, by Zapata soldiers near Pueblo.

Mallory, the report said, was in an automobile with a son of the Chilean minister to Mexico and two Spaniards. The car, en route to the coast, flew the American flag and was carrying diplomatic correspondence.

Near Pueblo the automobile was stopped by a company of Zapata soldiers. The occupants were pulled out and the American flag was torn from the staff and trampled upon by the soldiers, who took Mallory and his companions before a Zapata officer. They were searched, their papers taken and the two Spaniards sentenced to be executed. Whether sentence was carried out is not known, the message bearing evidence of having been censored on that point.

Mallory protested against the sentence of the Spaniards, one of whom was chauffeur of the automobile.

"Keep your mouth shut or you will be shot," he was told by the officer, who later released him. An investigation of the incident has been ordered.

GALLOWS IS STAYED FOR FOUR MEXICANS

Judge Grants Appeal After Preparations Had Been Made.

Phoenix, Ariz., July 30.—Vacating his own court order, made earlier in the day, Judge McAllister of the superior court granted an appeal to the state supreme court in the cases of four Mexicans sentenced to be hanged at the Florence penitentiary.

An appeal previously had been taken in the case of the fifth condemned Mexican.

All preparations for the executions of the men had been completed by Warden Sims at the penitentiary at Florence.

Judge McAllister reopened the cases after it was shown that his previous decision in denying writs of habeas corpus prevented an appeal that would act as a stay of execution.

The appeal will be considered by the state supreme court at its session here next September.

RUSSIANS SEEM READY TO LEAVE

Indications Are That Warsaw Will Be Evacuated.

MAKING STRONG RESISTANCE

At Various Points in Poland the Muscovites Continue to Check the Austro-Germans in Their Efforts to Encircle the City—May Retire to New Defensive Positions.

London, July 30.—There are signs that momentous events are happening around Warsaw. If the evacuation of the Polish capital has not already begun it is believed in many quarters that the withdrawal of the Russians is not far off.

At various points in Poland the Russians continue to check the Austro-Germans in their efforts to encircle Warsaw, but the consensus of views of the military critics of the Petrograd newspapers seems to point to the fear that the Russians will not long be able to keep back the tremendous pressure of the Teutonic allies.

Neither the Germans nor the Austrians are making claim to any new advances along the semi-circular line which runs from the Baltic provinces across the frontier of Galicia.

On the contrary, it is admitted by them that the Russians on the Narva front to the southeast of Warsaw, in the Gora Kalwarya region, and in Northern Galicia, near Sokal, are barring their way with heavy counter attacks and that the situation north of the Niemen river and in the southeast, in Lublin district generally, is unchanged.

Prepares Public for Retreat.

Despite this, however, Petrograd's journalistic war observers, after conversations with "competent military authorities," seemingly are stimulating their readers for a new retreat by the Russians.

They ask that the Russians view the events which are about to transpire with confidence and tranquillity and to maintain their faith "in the glorious Russian army until such time as it shall undertake a decisive aggressive to break, once for all, the power of the stubborn enemy."

The Rech says the Russians will retire eastward to new defensive positions along the line of the fortresses of Kovno, Gradno and Brest Litovsk. These points lie just outside the Polish border on the east. Such a move, if carried out, would give the Germans and Austrians full possession of the 50,000 square miles of Poland and its population of over 10,000,000.

Another newspaper says that seventy German divisions, all the German cavalry and a big part of the Austro-Hungarian armies are operating against Russia and urges the evacuation of the fortresses on the Narva-Vistula line.

The capture of Warsaw naturally would be made the occasion for great celebrations in Germany and it is reported that Emperor William has arranged to make a state entry into the city, accompanied by the empress.

TORPEDO STEAMER AND BRIG

German Submarines Sink Two More Ships.

London, July 30.—The Belgian steamship Princess Marie Jose, of 1,953 tons gross burden, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine. Twenty-one members of the crew of twenty-five were saved.

The Swedish brig Fortuna was torpedoed and sunk in the North sea by a German submarine, according to a dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph company. The crew was saved.

The brig was 303 tons burden and was built in 1878.

DROPPED CHILDREN 60 FEET

New Yorker Is Found Guilty of Murder.

New York, July 30.—Hyman Liebman, charged with having killed his seven-year-old daughter by throwing her down an airshaft, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by a jury in general sessions.

Pending a motion to determine the sanity of the prisoner he was remanded to the Tombs.

Liebman on March 17, during the absence of his wife, who, the night previous had served him with a summons charging nonsupport, dropped his two children, Sadie, seven years old, and Samuel, five years old, down an airshaft to the basement, sixty feet below. The girl died as the result of her injuries and the boy will be crippled for life.

While awaiting trial here Liebman attempted suicide.

BECKER PAYS DEATH PENALTY

(By United Press)

Ossining, July 30.—At peace with his Maker, never faltering, and muttering, "Lord have mercy on us, Christ have mercy on us," Charles Becker expired, the murder of Rosenthal this morning at 5:55. Pinned to the death robes over his heart, he carried the picture of his devoted wife. Before entering the chamber, he said: "I am sacrificed for my friends." Although the attendants are well trained, the execution was unnecessarily horrible. The guards carelessly applied the straps allowing the ghastly sound of clenching teeth. Becker walked unassisted, and headed the death procession at his own request. The guard usually heads the procession. Unflinching and undoped, he approached the chair, and held the black crucifix, his eyes upon the floor. His executioner is unknown, but he received a hundred dollars for killing Becker and a negro before him.

Becker Makes Dying Statement

(By United Press)

Ossining, July 30.—Lieut. Becker made a written dying statement which was announced at nine this morning as follows: "Gentlemen, I stand before you in my full senses, knowing no power on earth can save me from the grave, in the face of them, in the teeth of those condemning me, in the presence of my God and your God. I proclaim my absolute innocence of the foul crime for which I must die. You are about to witness the destruction of life by the state organized to protect the lives of the innocent. May God Almighty pardon every one contributing in any degree to my untimely death. Now on the brink of the grave, I declare I am proud to be the husband of the purest and noblest woman who ever lived, Helen Becker. This acknowledgment is the only legacy she is left."

Becker Receives Three Shocks

(By United Press)

Ossining, July 30.—The official report says Becker received three shocks of 1,850 volts of 10 amperes each. The first shock was at 5:44 and lasted until 5:45.

Ossining, July 30.—Fathers Curry and Cassin, spiritual advisors of Becker, think he died innocent on account of their experience that the guilty invariably make dying confessions of their crime.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 30.—In a dimly lighted room of the Nelson House here Mrs. Charles Becker, whose husband died at Sing Sing for

Men Who Suffered for Rosenthal Murder

Herman Rosenthal was murdered July 16, 1912, so the date set for the execution of Charles Becker, the New York police lieutenant, July 30, 1915, was two weeks more than three years after the crime. Becker induced Jack Rose, "Bridgie" Weber, and Harry Vallon, gamblers, to employ "Bib the Blood," "Lefty Louie," "Whitey" Lewis, and "Dago Frank," well known thieves, pickpockets and gangsters, who lived chiefly off the earnings of women on the streets, to do the work.

They rose in an automobile to the entrance of the Hotel Metropole, in Forty-third street, the heart of the "Upper Tenderloin" of New York City, at 1 o'clock in the morning when the street was brightly lighted. Rosenthal was called from the restaurant by a messenger, and shot to death in sight of scores of persons at the door. The murderers were electrocuted at Sing Sing, April 13, 1914. Becker got a second trial and his lawyers kept his case in the courts until this time.

Becker's reason for the murder was that Rosenthal, whose gambling house was kept closed largely through Becker's influence, had gone to District Attorney Whitman, now Governor of New York, to give information which would have resulted in the policeman's indictment.

Governor Whitman so declared on his return from Poughkeepsie.

"Becker is right in saying he never made a direct offer, for I have not spoken to him since the night Rosenthal was murdered," the governor said. "He well can say that, for he personally never has made any proposition to me. It is a well known fact that his counsel offered to implicate others in graft disclosures and named five persons. It was only a short time ago that Becker's counsel in New York city said that it was 'up to me' to name the men."

After answering questions concerning the Becker letter the governor exclaimed:

"I don't wish to say more about a man condemned to die. This man is guilty. There isn't the slightest doubt about it. It was the most perfectly proved case in the annals of criminal history."

NEVER MADE DIRECT OFFER

Governor Whitman Refers to Becker Pleading Guilty.

Albany, N. Y., July 30.—Charles Becker never made a direct offer to plead guilty to murder in the second degree and never offered directly to implicate others in graft exposures.

DON'T CHANGE YOUR CHURCH

We urge the sinners, everyone,
To make the great confession;
And when they have it fitly made
We claim them our possession.

We feed them in our churchly fold
Our own peculiar way;
And mark them with our branding iron
That none may get away.

We bid them take our sacrament,
And have them well baptized,
According to the "only mode"
And have them catechized.

We warn them not to break the law
Of the ritualistic school;
We have them lisp the litany
If they smash the golden rule.

We teach them that the other church
Which stands across the way,
Is wrong; its members in the dark,
Will never see the day.

We bless them loudly when they join
Our own denomination;
We have them dammed eternally
If they change their church relation.

A man can join a dozen clubs
And lodge by the score,
But if you leave the mother church
You'll miss the golden shore.

You can rob an orphan's home;
You can flich a car of wheat;
If you keep your pew rent paid
You may still retain your seat.

You can steal a widow's house and lot
Without a passing exclamation;
But to tamper with your creed
Means ex-communication.

Beads and biscuits, rites and forms,
Supplant the Christian spirit;
And while we shout "Millennium!"
We are getting nowhere near it.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work.
The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Marble Pudding

Steamed puddings will not be heavy if made with K C Baking Powder and cooked slowly to give the pudding time to rise before the dough is cooked through. Have a low blaze under the water for at least the first fifteen minutes.

K C Marble Pudding

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine.
2 cups sifted pastry flour; 2 level teaspoonfuls K C Baking Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful cinnamon; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; yolks of 2 eggs, beaten light; 1 cup sugar; 1/2 tablespoonful melted butter; 1/2 cup cold water; whites of 2 eggs, beaten dry; 1/2 ounces melted chocolate.

Sift together, three times, the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon. To the yolks add the sugar, butter and water, and stir into the dry ingredients. Add the whites of the eggs. Divide the mixture into two parts and add the chocolate to one part. Dispose the two parts in a buttered mold to give a marbled appearance. Steam forty-five minutes.

Vanilla Sauce

Boil 2 cups of sugar and a cup of water six minutes; add 2 tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

The K C Cook's Book containing this and 90 other delicious, successful, recipes sent free upon receipt of the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans of K C Baking Powder. Write your name and address plainly. Jaques Mig. Co., Chicago.

Why Post Toasties?

A question that's fully answered by your first package of the New Post Toasties.

These Superior Corn Flakes are delightfully crisp to start with, and they have a body and firmness that stay crisp, even after cream is added.

New Post Toasties

have the real corn flavour. Eat them dry direct from the package and they please amazingly, but serve these tender, crisp bits of corn with milk or cream and at once you realize that the day of ordinary corn flakes is past.

All grocers have been supplied with the New Post Toasties fresh from the factory ovens. An order to your grocer will bring a package quickly.

Lord Northcliff's Views of the War

On this the anniversary of the first of the declarations of war that led to the present war conflict, Austria against Serbia, the United Press asked Lord Northcliff, Europe's most widely known publisher to submit his views of the war.

Lord Northcliff, is the leading newspaper publisher of Great Britain, controller of the Times, publisher of the Daily Mail, The Evening News and numerous other periodicals whose recent campaign of publicity, in regard to the war resulted in the formation of coalition ministry in England. His views of the contest follow:

London, July 28—These are my views of the war from my own purely individual British standpoint.

First, I desire to give credit to the Russians who enabled a non-military and unprepared nation, like ourselves, to hold off the colossal German attacks at the beginning of the war.

Secondly, I desire to say that the efforts of France are insufficiently appreciated in the U. S. and to a lesser extent in Great Britain. Owing to efforts of socialistic politicians and professional pacemongers, France was not prepared for the sudden German onslaught.

She has pulled herself together in marvelous fashion and her army today is the best in the world. Her losses, nobly born, amount, I believe nearly to a million and a half, killed, wounded and missing. Of the efforts of little Belgium, I need not speak to Americans. The valor of the small Belgian army is only equalled by the magnificent generosity of the American people who enabled the Belgians to exist. Italy, Serbia, tiny Montenegro are all entitled to great praise.

Of our own part in the war, it is a little invidious for an Englishman to speak, but there has not, I think, been due recognition in the U. S. and Canada of the fact that our fleet has swept the Germans from the seas and holds billions of dollars worth of German shipping in bondage. Submarining may increase, but so, I may say without revealing secrets, are our means of counteracting the submarines. Our fleet has not been so badly meddled with by the politicians as has our army, one of our great seamen, Fisher, resigned because of political interferences in a certain portion of the sea war.

The English, Scotch, Welsh, Irish, Australian, South African and Indian soldiers and the large number of Americans who have joined our forces in one way or the other, have exhibited in the face of 20th century killing machines, a bravery that equals any previous examples of courage in the world's history.

If anyone who reads these lines remembers my previous communications to the American press he will know that from the outset I expressed my belief that the present upheaval would be of long duration. Nor have I ever altered my belief that it would have one ending—the smashing of the organized military tyranny which seeks to dominate the world. What Bismarck called the nation of house-servants, always obedient to word of command, has been provided with most of the inventions of American ingenuity—the aeroplane, the machine gun and the like. It is not possible, however, whatever may be the fluctuating fortunes of war that nations composed of free men and individuals shall be ruled by such second rate and imitative races as the Prussians, Saxons and Bavarians. I have always held that this massed attempt of the second rate to dominate the world will fail because it is unjust and engineered by the second rate. I believe that the free races of Europe will undergo far greater tribulation at the hand of the organized servants than they have yet endured, but the end is just as certain as it was in 1815 when, instead of massed mediocrity, the world was fighting the individual genius of Napoleon. Speculation as to whether the U. S. can or should enter the fight or whether they will be bullied into it, do not bulk as largely here as they are made to do in the newspapers of the U. S. We know we have the sympathy of the vast proportion of Americans. We know that the allies can finish this fight by themselves. WHAT WAR MOVES MEAN

By J. W. T. Mason

New York, July 30—The slow advance the Germans have been making since they crossed the Narew river to the north of Warsaw is undoubtedly a matter for uneasiness at Berlin. Nearly a week has passed since the elaborate Russian defenses along the Narew river fell into German hands and yet the Teutons have been unable to make appreciable advance across the few miles that separate the Narew from the Warsaw defenses along the Bug river.

The calculations of the German general staff must have been thrown into confusion by the ability of the Russians to hold fast to the Narew-Bug plains and it is probable that far more men are being required to press home the operations than the Germans originally provided.

Five offensives were attempted at the outset of the Warsaw campaign, one in the Baltic provinces another against Warsaw itself, a third against Ivangorod, a fourth against the Chelm-Lublin railway, and a fifth in Eastern Galicia. Three of these have now been halted and only the Warsaw and the Chelm-Lublin operations are being persistently pushed. The Russians have the same advantage in defending Warsaw that the Germans hold in the Western war area. Technically this advantage is known as possession of the inner lines of communications.

The German front from the Narew to the Chelm-Lublin railway is a half a circle of 200 miles. The Slavs, however being inside the circle can move from one end of the battle front to the other along a diagonal line of a little more than 100 miles.

The Russians too have the better railway service at their command. Hence the Germans do not possess the means of concentrating at a given point more rapidly than the Russians are able to do so. This is the first time since the war began that the advantage in concentration lies with the Russians. Under no circumstances, therefore, ought the Grand Duke Nicholas to allow himself to be outnumbered. On the contrary he should now be in a position to oppose the Germans everywhere with a superior force.

WELCOME CANNON BACK IN CONGRESS

Uncle Joe Will Be One of the Picturesque Figures.

WON'T HAVE LEADING ROLE.

No Place Vacant in the Management of the House on the Republican Side. Secretary Lane Playing to Big Audiences in His "Shows," Which Are Scattered Throughout the West.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.

Washington, July 30.—[Special.]—Uncle Joe Cannon will not be much more than a memory in the coming congress. In the very nature of things he cannot take a prominent part in the proceedings nor be accorded a ranking place in the management of affairs by those who now control the Republican side of the house.

That is impossible, because there is no place for any man in the management of the Republican side. The others may struggle along and think they are given the impression that they are lieutenants, but they know that Jim Mann is the whole thing in leadership.

Uncle Joe served one term after he had been speaker and when Mann was minority leader. He spoke quite frequently and occasionally showed some of his old time fire, but for the most part he was relegated to second place—even further down in the scheme of things.

A Picturesque Relic.

Probably Uncle Joe would resent being called a picturesque relic, but what can you say? He is a relic of things long past and much of which has been forgotten. In a house he once dominated and ruled with an iron hand there have been many changes, and a generation has arisen "which knew not Joseph." He is scarcely the "grand old man," for it takes more than a of the world is one for the American people themselves to decide. My own opinion is that they have been well led in this matter up to the present. I am not able to fathom the reasons for the violent anti-American campaign conducted by the official newspapers of Germany. It may be that the Germans are attempting to frighten the Americans. Such a campaign was made against England just a year ago. It had no effect whatever on English public opinion, which directly little Belgium was attacked, rallied instantly to cause caused of freedom. I do not think that the German government's action as evidenced by its press hostility will in any way influence American opinion. I have no more to say about the future of the war than I have said on previous occasion. The war stands very much where it did with this difference that whereas a great many Germans have been killed, the allies have not yet reached their full strength in men. Our politicians have done very much what your politicians did in the early days of the civil war. Politicians are about the same all the world over. We have not produced our Lincoln or our Grant, excellent British names both, but I have no doubt that we shall.

speakership to elevate a man to that distinction in national life. Uncle Joe will be picturesque, that is sure, but it is not expected that he will be as active even as in the last congress he served.

Other Ex-Speakers.

I have seen two ex-speakers come back after many years' absence. They were not like Cannon, with the memories of their past achievements forgotten by everybody. One of these was Galusha A. Grow, a speaker in the first term during the civil war. The other was J. Warren Keifer, a speaker for one term back in the early eighties. Grow was inclined to be garrulous at times on account of his former position, and age was shown consideration. But he did not accomplish anything in his later years. Keifer did not need any consideration or deference. After being away a score of years he came back vigorous, opinionated and pugnacious. He took care of himself, although he did not take any place like leadership.

Lane's Big Shows.

Secretary Lane of the Interior department has taken means to show that he is running several big shows in the west as well as those people who have expositions in charge. He has not neglected to keep the wayfarers informed that he has parks galore which are as interesting as any man made show. He has called attention to the Yellowstone, the Yosemite, the Sequoia, the Glacier, Mount Rainier, Mesa Verde, Rocky Mountain and a dozen smaller parks and reservations where there are natural wonders if Americans are really interested in them. According to reports received in Washington, he has been "showing to good business," as the theatrical people would say.

Hard Job For a Coacher.

Oscar Underwood is a "wise guy." No one heard of his attempting to coach Claude Kitchin on how to be leader of the house. And, what is more, it will be found that whoever attempts to be coacher will have a hard job. The first act of Kitchin after he had been selected minority leader was to oppose one of the pet plans of the Wilson administration. He is likely to assert his views and take his positions regardless of administration or other influences. Kitchin is not such a smooth proposition as Underwood.

Not Campaign Material.

Some of Senator Burton's friends are trying to make campaign material out of his fight on the river and harbor bill. They point out that he saved the country $30,000,000 by his opposition. That will not make any votes for him. Where one person will remember and be for Burton because he saved that money there are a thousand who feel sore because the money was not appropriated and spent on improvements in different parts of the country. Economy is no good as a campaign cry. The people want federal money circulated in their districts. Every congressman knows that.

Something to Think About.

The declaration of Colonel Roosevelt in favor of relinquishing the Philippines will give the Democrats something to think about. They fear "the Greeks bearing gifts." There was no more rapid expansionist at one time than the colonel. Now to talk "scuttling" is such a change of front that people interested really wonder what he means.

Modifying It.

"She threatened to throw hot water in my face," said a school attendance officer, referring to a woman who had been summoned in respect of the truancy of her child.

"You must not throw hot water," the judge told the defendant. "You can heap coals of fire on his head, if you like."—Pittsburgh Press.

Effecting an Economic Cure—Last Word in Efficiency and Scientific Endeavor

The Dispatch republishes the following article on the State Sanatorium at Walker, written by Editor

The Minnesota State Sanatorium—Main Building

Chas. F. Sheers of the Akeley Herald-Tribune of July 16. For the illustrations the Dispatch is indebted to the Minnesota Sanatorium.

"Be it hereby resolved, that the Upper Mississippi Medical Association approves the present method of the Minnesota State Sanatorium for Consumptives in admitting patients regardless of the stage of the disease," the foregoing resolution, adopted unanimously at the meeting of the medical men held at the sanatorium July 13, placing the latter officially on record as being right behind Supt. Beach in his advanced position in fighting the white plague.

Representative medical men of the north half of the state, and several eminent physicians from the cities, assembled at the State Sanatorium, Tuesday, and listened to excellent papers on the most dreaded of all human plagues. The medical men present showed keen interest and participated in a thorough discussion has passed beyond the experimental stage. It gets results. It effects an economic cure beyond a question of a doubt. Another important fact that has been fully developed is that the Minnesota sanatorium is located right. With these essential advantages and backed by a wealth of experience and knowledge and an association of some of the state's most eminent medical men, Dr. Beach will receive patients regardless of the stage to which the disease has developed. The superintendent and his efficient staff will not be expected to furnish a patient with a new set of lungs nor to accomplish anything superhuman. An economic cure will them and caused by the terrible malady. There is a better understanding between patient and the superintendent and his staff. The visitor of three years ago and the visitor of yesterday must have been wonderfully impressed with the general improved conditions, not that there was any just grounds to complain of former administrations, but because the experimental stage has passed. The patient now endeavors to co-operate and a careful study of the faces will reveal a fairly satisfactory condition of contentment. The recreation hall is one of the best investments that the state of Minnesota ever made. Recreations such as was put on Tuesday night by the splendid talent that find a home at the sanatorium will do more to chase away the blues and enable the patient to secure a good night's rest than any one element of all the good ones. The grounds are being gradually transformed into a beautiful park. The agricultural progress is rapid. The fine herd of Holsteins, several of which have given as much as 80 pounds of milk daily, afford an abundant supply of milk. The dairy and poultry department will overcome some of the criticism, because it has not always been possible to get strictly fresh eggs and milk, and for which the management has been criticized, unjustly, as the housewife will admit who in the past has attempted to buy "strictly" fresh eggs. The well-cared for gardens teem with green stuff and aids in making the tables more inviting. As was remarked by Dr. Desmond of Akeley when the patients assembled at the delightful dining room, "This looks like a gathering of tourists at a summer resort."

NOKAY LAKE NEWS

The Nokay Lake young peoples society had their picnic last Saturday on the banks of Nokay lake. The crowd was so small that some of the officers got so disgusted they took their picnic dinner (which was to be shared among all) and started for home, leaving the crowd tired and hungry. But the crowd was sort of a jolly one and therefore spent the rest of the afternoon in playing games in spite of the officers and hunger. We hope they will soon decide to give another one and that they will work up an appetite so that the crowd may enjoy a picnic dinner.

The Woodrow Giants were defeated by the Brainerd Speedwells on the Woodrow grounds on July 25, the score being 8 to 18.

There will be a dance given in the new town hall Saturday evening, August 1st. Everybody is invited.

Roy Beck was a Woodrow caller on Sunday. Where?

There was no more rabid expansionist at one time than the colonel. Now to talk "scuttle" is such a change of front that people interested really wonder what he means.

A WONDERFUL ADVANCEMENT

Effecting an Economic Cure—Last Word in Efficiency and Conscientious Endeavor

has passed beyond the experimental stage. It gets results. It effects an economic cure beyond a question of a doubt. Another important fact that has been fully developed is that the Minnesota sanatorium is located right. With these essential advantages and backed by a wealth of experience and knowledge and an association of some of the state's most eminent medical men, Dr. Beach will receive patients regardless of the stage to which the disease has developed. The superintendent and his efficient staff will not be expected to furnish a patient with a new set of lungs nor to accomplish anything superhuman. An economic cure will

"Be it hereby resolved, that the Upper Mississippi Medical Association approves the present method of the Minnesota State Sanatorium for Consumptives in admitting patients regardless of the stage of the disease," the foregoing resolution, adopted unanimously at the meeting of the medical men held at the sanatorium July 13, placing the latter officially on record as being right behind Supt. Beach in his advanced position in fighting the white plague.

Representative medical men of the north half of the state, and several eminent physicians from the cities, assembled at the State Sanatorium, Tuesday, and listened to excellent papers on the most dreaded of all human plagues. The medical men present showed keen interest and participated in a thorough discussion be effected wherever possible and all patients may become practical and useful missionaries in exemplifying the fact that cleanliness is next to Godliness. Future generations will be the beneficiaries of such an educational campaign in which the afflicted personally co-operate.

From a population of 59 in August, 1912, to 216 on Tuesday, it will be seen that the physicians and laymen are awakening to the important advantages of an early recognition of tuberculosis and of institutional treatment and not that the disease is making more ravages than in the past. This large number is splendidly cared for, although the employees are pressed to the limit in doing the work, for while the number of patients has doubled the number of employees has been kept down to the minimum. The new buildings are completed and occupied. They include a plumbing wing with adequate bathing facilities, a service of the subject. Some disappointment was felt, however, in the limited attendance from so large a membership, especially when it is considered that the average physician is woefully deficient in his ability to recognize this monster when he meets it in his profession. It is altogether probable that such a statement made in the presence of the home doctor would be promptly repudiated, but these facts were convincingly developed at the sanatorium meeting. Dr. G. H. Lowthian, president of the association, presided at the meetings, while Dr. Coulter of Wadena acted as secretary. The principal papers were read by Dr. Chesley of Minneapolis and Dr. Beach, superintendent of the sanatorium. Dr. J. A. Thabes of Brainerd, Dr. Desmond, Akeley, Dr. Kenyon of Wadena, Coulter of Wadena, Wilcox of Walker, and other prominent physicians participated in the lively discussions that followed.

The sanatorium has made wonderful progress under the able management of Dr. Beach, who is not only an expert when it comes to consumption, but personally a large, brainy man, full of love for the unfortunate and possessing extraordinary executive ability—and absolutely immune from public criticism. In fact he delights in honest and fair criticism. It is well known that the Minnesota State Sanatorium was primarily intended to combat "incipient pulmonary tuberculosis." The institution building containing a large dining room, modern kitchen, laundry and bed rooms for employees, an assembly hall and a children's pavilion. At present there are several children under treatment. Little mistakes in construction may be easily remedied, and it is probable that when such progressive men as constitute the state board of control make their next visit to the sanatorium that they may see their way clear to subscribe a part of their salaries, if need be, to add a few conveniences. The "economy and efficiency" itch has stricken the entire staff of the sanatorium, but it might be carried to the false economy extreme. It is altogether too hot in the laundry, an electric fan or better ventilation would conserve the strength of the employees for more efficient service if possible; a power driven ice cream freezer, instead of the arm-strong variety, would enable three men to bring better returns with their hard labor; the big ice box is too far removed; the employees' reception room is too dark and dismal and not well located. But these little items will adjust themselves. The sanatorium is the last word in economy and efficiency, with the funds available to do things. Everything is neat and tidy. The food is good and wholesome. The staff and employees are striving hard to afford every possible comfort and convenience to the patients, and bear patiently with the latter in complaints that may be anticipated from them and caused by the terrible malady. There is a better understanding between patient and the superintendent and his staff. The visitor of three years ago and the visitor of yesterday must have been wonderfully impressed with the general improved conditions, not that there was any just grounds to complain of former administrations, but because the experimental stage has passed. The patient now endeavors to co-operate and a careful study of the faces will reveal a fairly satisfactory condition of contentment. The recreation hall is one of the best investments that the state of Minnesota ever made. The amusements such as was put on Tuesday night by the splendid talent that finds a home at the sanatorium will do more to chase away the blues and enable the patient to secure a good night's rest than any one element of all the good ones. The grounds are being gradually transformed into a beautiful park. The agricultural progress is rapid. The fine herd of Holsteins, several of which have given as much as 80 pounds of milk daily, afford an abundant supply of milk. The dairy and poultry department will overcome some of the criticism, because it has not always been possible to get strictly fresh eggs and milk, and for which the management has been criticized, unjustly, as the housewife will admit who in the past has attempted to buy "strictly" fresh eggs. The well-cared for gardens teem with green stuff and aids in making the tables more inviting. As was remarked by Dr. Desmond of Akeley when the patients assembled at the delightful dining room. "This looks like a gathering of tourists at a summer resort."

NOKAY LAKE NEWS

The Nokay Lake young peoples society had their picnic last Saturday on the banks of Nokay lake. The crowd was so small that some of the officers got so disgusted they took their picnic dinner (which was to be shared among all) and started for home, leaving the crowd tired and hungry. But the crowd was sort of a jolly one and therefore spent the rest of the afternoon in playing games in spite of the officers and hunger. We hope they will soon decide to give another one and that they will work up an appetite so that the crowd may enjoy a picnic dinner.

The Woodrow Glants were defeated by the Brainerd Speedwells on the Woodrow grounds on July 25, the score being 8 to 18.

There will be a dance given in the new town hall Saturday evening, August 1st. Everybody is invited.

Roy Beck was a Woodrow caller on Sunday. Where?

ONE YEAR OF THE GREAT WAR

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

BY ED. L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(FIFTH STORY)

London, July 30—England starts upon the second year of the great war with decided advantages over her position of twelve months ago.

She has command of the seas. She has an army, trained and in training, of nearly three million men. Her "expeditionary force" in France is now firmly entrenched in a position regarded as impregnable, even if the prospects of making a successful general offensive movement are not immediate. Her airmen have established beyond question their superiority in skill and daring over those of the enemy. She is building a great aerial fleet. She has at last begun with all the resources at her command, material and human, to manufacture a preponderating quantity of arms and ammunition—of the right sort. She has back of her a united nation and a united Empire.

The war found her unprepared not only from the military standpoint, but politically. The Liberal government was apparently riding for a fall. There had been all but mutiny in the army. The Irish had become more turbulent than ever. Sir Edward Carson had established his "Provisional Government of Ulster," and revolution was in sight. India was seething with sedition. Even Canada had shown signs of tiring of the restraint of mother's apron strings. Industrial unrest was at its height. Altogether things were in a very bad way.

Now most of the troubles have disappeared. Some of them remained longer than others, it is true. It has been a year of readjustment. Liberals and Conservatives, radicals and Tories, now sleep in the same bed. So far as the Irish disaffection, upon which the Kaiser counted so fondly—thanks to the lack of understanding on the part of his emissaries—is concerned, that vanished almost over night. It was a short war to Tipperary. Sir Edward Carson, whom they were about to lock up in the Tower, is now Attorney General of Great Britain, and John Redmond could be in the cabinet if he wanted to. One hundred and twenty-five thousand Irishmen have joined the King's army. Nationalists and unionists—75,000 of the former and 50,000 of the latter—instead of drenching Ireland with each other's blood are fighting side by side under the Union Jack.

Canada heard the call to arms and responded at once with 33,000 men to whom she had been adding regularly since. They—or rather what is left of them—are serving in the trenches along with Gurkhas from India. Australians and New Zealanders together with Welshmen and Scotchmen are engaged in the Dardanelles in one of the most valorous campaigns in the history of warfare. The sporadic uprising in South Africa has been suppressed, and the great mass of Boers against whom England conducted her unrighteous war fifteen years ago, with General Botha at their head, have conquered German Southwest Africa for England. Labor and capital have joined their forces in the conflict. There has been much talk of conscription of late, both military and industrial. The leaders of the nation still believe England can win without either, and if the recent response of the manhood of the country is any criterion, they are right. But they are prepared for conscription, if that should prove to be the only solution. The national register scheme looks as if it were a step in that direction. The machinery for conscription is to be created, but only to be utilized in the gravest emergency.

Although she has lost her cocksureness, England has by no means lost hope. She realizes now that the struggle may be long and desperate. But the longer the better for her and her allies in the end. Military writers, many of them, say Germany has now reached the maximum of her efficiency, while England has only got a good start toward that goal. With the boundless resources of the British Empire still to draw upon England believes ultimate victory for the allies can only be a question of time—if the spirit that now dominates England continues.

If it is to be a war of exhaustion, she says, then the odds are in favor of England and her allies.

AS SEEN IN GERMANY

CARL W. ACKERMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(FIFTH STORY)

Berlin, July 30—Germany's assets after a year's warfare can be summed up thus:

Possession of Russian Poland, Belgium and Northern France—territory as large and rich as New England and New York.

The Fatherland entirely free of the enemy, save for a small strip of Western Alsace.

Powerful and active submarine and Zeppelin fleets.

A tradition for the navy. An army still capable of offensive operations everywhere in the war theatres. And hundreds of thousands of men capable of bearing arms, not yet called to the colors.

Finances unimpaired—the only belligerent which has not borrowed heavily, openly or in secret, in foreign lands, and which has neither declared a moratorium or cancelled public debts.

A million citizens in neutral lands ready to return home and help Germany recuperate after the war.

Territory practically undamaged by the ravages of war.

Germany's losses during the year's struggle are:

Over one half of her colonial empire captured.

All her overseas commerce temporarily destroyed.

Two hundred and fifty thousand soldiers killed.

Expenditure of about $2,500,000,000.

The war has given Germany these heroes:

The Kaiser, Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who won the battle of the Mazurian Lakes, freed East Prussia from the Slavs and pricked the bubble of Russia's irresistible might.

Gen. von Haeseler, who led the German rush into France.

Lieut. von der Linden, who with 15 men captured a fort at Numa, Belgium, without firing a shot and permitted the Germans to begin the rout of the allies.

Commanded Otto Weddigen, of the submarine U-29, who sank four British cruisers in the North Sea and who finally met his death when his submarine was sunk by a British ship flying the Swedish flag.

Captain von Muecke, a lieutenant of the famous sea-raider "Emden," who led the Cocos Island landing party from the Emden safely back to Berlin, after the Emden was sunk.

Admiral von Spee, who sank one British squadron and preferred to fight his own squadron off the Falklands until ships and crews went to the bottom, rather than surrender to an overwhelmingly superior British fleet.

The naval heroes equal those of the army. Germany believes the tradition established for her navy by the initiative, courage and ability of her sailors during the past year one of the most valuable benefits the war has conferred on her. The men who have died at sea for the Fatherland will have their names inscribed on imperishable rolls as a new inspiration for the Empire. When the present war broke the German navy was an untied instrument. It had learned all it knew of sea-fighting by maneuvers and study.

The war has demonstrated conclusively to Germany that man for man the English, with all their centuries of sea training, are not the equals of the Germans. One of the major surprises of the war is the comparative inefficiency of England's naval commanders.

The manner in which Admiral Craddock allowed himself to be out-manuevered in the Chilean coast battle by Admiral von Spee, the futility of the English attempt to force the Dardanelles; and the disputes of the Admiralty in London, culminating in the open mutiny of Baron Fisher, are all believed by the Germans as representative incidents, showing British naval prestige has been permanently injured. The activities of the German submarines are among the most potent causes of German optimism as a new year of warfare begins. The Germans don't expect their overseas boats to destroy the English navy or so to reduce it as to permit the German high seas fleet to venture forth to battle. This belief did prevail for a short time after Admiral von Weddigen's exploits in the North Sea, but it is no longer held. Nevertheless the operations against England's merchant fleet are considered to be second only in importance to under sea attacks against warships themselves.

The Germans are convinced that the submarines have demoralized Britain's confidence. That is why the government will not abandon its submarine policy, no matter how long the war may go on.

of her army, under way when war caught her.

She made an army of individuals, temperamentalists and thinkers into an army of tenacious veterans, two-to-one more efficient than at the outset of the war.

She banished the ghost of 1870. She learned to fight as the other fellow fights, by burrowing.

She retook part of Alsace, her lost province.

She stopped the Crow Prince at Verdun.

She held Nancy, the eastern gate to Paris.

She created heavy artillery, lacking at the start.

She ousted shirkers from safe positions back of the line and sent them to the trenches; and brought out of the trenches mechanics, engineers and others needed for war material factories.

She sent a large expeditionary force to the Dardanelles.

She bottled the Austrian fleet in the Adriatic just as England bottled the German fleet at Kiel, keeping the Mediterranean open.

She successfully launched all war financial measures.

She abolished absinthe and put other intoxicants under control.

She provided for the families of soldiers.

She cared for her own refugees and provided homes and nourishment for Belgians.

She placed women in men's jobs and kept the economic life of the country going.

She kept calm despite invasion of her territory; backed her soldiers with a patient, toiling, united citizenry; and, much to her credit, has yet to utter the first word of criticism against any one of her allies.

France was never so calm as now. She has suffered—and is still suffering cruelly—but she has not complained. Her feeling runs too deep for outward show thus revealing a little-known trait of the French.

Judging by what France has accomplished during the first year of the war, and by her present deadly calm, the powers of Central Europe have a hot time in store for them during the second year of the war, which begins Sunday.

PAY DAY AT THE MINES

Armour No. 2 Paid Out $16,000. Cuyuna-Mille Lacs Near Ironton Has Resumed Work

FIRST STATE BANK CHANGE

O. A. Miller Goes to Voltaire, N. D., F. A. Olson of Barrett, Takes His Place

Ironton, Minn., July 29—Mines in the Ironton district paid out last payday as follows: Armour No. 2, $16,000; Fenington work at Armour No. 1, $7,200; Thompson, $7,000; Hill Crest pit mine, $1,700. The Cuyuna-Mille Lacs mine has started work.

Ironton streets are regularly given treatment with a split log drag after every rain, and the results attained are appreciated by all road users.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Ellingson have returned from St. Paul where they visited his brother. The trip was made in Mr. Ellingson's fine touring car.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tabert are visiting his wife's parents in Red Lake Falls.

O. A. Hiller, of the First State bank, goes to Voltaire, N. D., where he will be employed in the Merchants & Farmers bank of that place. His situation at the First State bank of Ironton will be filled by F. A. Olson of Barrett.

Attending the stockholders meeting of the First State bank on July 20 were H. A. Thorson of Drake, N. D., and H. A. Sampson of Elbow Lake, N. D.

Edward R. Syverson, representative of Crow Wing county, is at Duluth attending to business matters. Visiting the First National bank of Ironton were Isaac Hazlett of Minneapolis, F. B. Coon, J. J. Meyer and W. E. Parker of Wadena, all directors of the institution.

J. H. Cooke, of Superior, Wis., ore traffic agent of the Northern Pacific railway, was at Ironton Tuesday.

V. M. Sugrue, of Aitkin, was in the city attending to business matters.

Ira W. Smith and family of Superior, Wis., are now living at their summer home in Crosby Beach.

Dr. and Mrs. J. E. McCoy and Mrs. Primus D. Kreitter motored to Brainerd Tuesday.

Ironton sent a big delegation to the Brainerd-Ironton game at Brainerd and will repeat it next Sunday, August 1.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Peck entertained Wednesday evening at cards on the occasion of the twenty-fifth birthday anniversary of the latter's brother, Ray Hunter.

MARINES SUFFER NO CASUALTIES

Landing Party in Hayti Encounters Resistance.

ADMIRAL FORWARDS REPORT

American Commander Says He Is Proceeding to Disarm Soldiers and Civilians and Asks for Reinforcements in Order to Properly Police Port au Prince.

Washington, July 30.—American marines landed at Port au Prince, Hayti, encountered resistance which was overcome without casualties among the sailors. The following message from Admiral Caperton was given out at the navy department:

"Landing forces established in city. Slight resistance during early part of night as advance was being made. This resistance easily overcome. No casualties in our force. Am proceeding to disarm Haytian soldiers and civilians."

The message was the first intimation received by the navy department that Admiral Caperton's men from the cruiser Washington had met resistance. Previous dispatches merely said he had established his landing force ashore and placed a guard about the French legation. His first report, however, suggested that a regiment of marines be sent to Port au Prince to enable him to police the entire city.

Admiral's Force Increased.

Admiral Caperton's force was increased by the arrival of 100 marines from Guantanamo on the collier Jason.

In all he has available between 400 and 500 marines and bluejackets for shore duty, backed up by the guns of the cruiser. No arrangements have been made to send him additional marines.

The French cruiser Descartes reached Port au Prince from Cape Haytien. A small force from the United States survey yacht Eagle was landed at the latter place to guard the French consulate, which has opened its doors to refugees from Port au Prince.

Officials said no new instructions had been forwarded to Admiral Caperton and no representations had been made by the French government regarding the violation of the French legation at Port au Prince.

FIND TWO DYING UNDER CAR

Men in Accident Near Devils Lake Are Pinioned by Auto.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 30.—Pinned under a heavy touring car from 8 p. m. until 9:30 a. m., Thomas Spice, sixty years old, a farmer living twenty miles northwest of Devils Lake, and Charles Mitchell, twenty-five years old, of Spooner, Wis., employed on the Spice farm, suffered injuries from which both died. When the car slipped off a grade and turned over the steering wheel pinned both men to the ground.

It was necessary to send fifteen miles for help to move the car and free the victims.

SHELLS DETERMINING FACTOR IN CONTEST.

London, July 30.—A Petrograd dispatch to Reuter's Telegram company says:

"Now that the Germans are across the Narew river Russia is taking no chances. Together with her allies she realizes that the war is a long distance race; that shells, not men, are the determining factor and that time is necessary to recover her second wind."

Wanted Now

Right now, when hay fever is attacking its victims and when asthma is causing so much distress, there is a demand for Foley's Honey and Tar Compound—the remedy that brought relief to thousands in previous years. TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and thick with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy of ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle, it is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and abundance of hair which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION GIVEN

State Supreme Court Declares Preferential System of Voting Provided by Duluth Charter

SAYS IT IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Case is of Interest to Brainerd Which Voted on Charter With Such Provision in Voting

In the case of John Brown, Jr., appellant, vs. W. H. Smallwood, respondent, the state supreme court hands down a decision by Justice D. J. Hallam dissenting, declaring unconstitutional the preferential system of voting provided by the Duluth charter. The syllabus reads:

1. It was the intention of Laws 1913, c. 102, that the preferential system of voting for such provision was made in the Duluth home rule charter of 1912, should apply to the election of the municipal judges of the city; and said act, though not passed by a two-thirds vote, legally provided an assistant judge, and a branch or division of the court, and fixed the terms of office and times of election of the judges and otherwise regulated the court and proceedings therein.

2. The preferential system of voting provided by the Duluth charter, whereby first choice, second choice and additional choice, votes are permitted, and are counted in a manner therein provided, is unconstitutional as in contravention of art. 7, sec. 1 and sec. 6, of the constitution.

Judgment reversed. This decision is of extreme interest to Brainerd, which recently considered a new charter which also provided for preferential voting. The adoption of such charter and a consequent election under the terms of preferential voting would have been affected by the above state supreme court decision.

EASTLAND CAPTAIN IN JAIL

Several Arrests Made Owing to Chicago Disaster

Chicago, July 30.—Federal inquiry into the capsizing of the steamer Eastland, with a loss of approximately 1,000 lives, got well under way, state activities having halted to await the service of mittimus upon the six men charged with responsibility for the disaster by the coroner's jury.

Of the six men held responsible for the Eastland accident Walter K. Greenbaum, general manager of the Indiana Transportation company, lessee of the Eastland, was arrested and later released on $20,000 bond. Engineer J. M. Erickson and Captain Harry Pedersen of the Eastland were taken to jail.

GIRL THOUGHT TO BE KIDNAPED

Miss Agnes Headman, Pretty 16 Old Girl, Formerly of Brainerd, Disappeared

FROM HER MINNEAPOLIS HOME

Mother Searching for Her—Police of Twin Cities Enlisted in Hunt for the Girl

Agnes Headman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Headman, former residents of Brainerd now residing in Minneapolis, is believed to have been kidnaped. The Minneapolis Tribune of July 29, publishes the girl's picture and this story:

A telephone call received by Mrs. P. Headman, 1702 Western avenue, from one who declared she was the woman's missing daughter, served only to deepen the mystery last night that surrounds the sudden disappearance of 16-year-old Agnes Headman last Sunday.

Mrs. Headman, frantic at her inability to get any assurances from the girl as to where she was or when she was coming home believes either that the telephone call was dictated to her daughter by someone responsible for her disappearance or that another posed as her daughter.

"The call came at 1:30 this afternoon and I have not seen Agnes nor heard from her since. I am afraid still that she is the victim of kidnapers. I found out that the call came from a pay station in St. Paul. The police of both cities are searching for the girl.

DENIES SALE

Sheriff Claus A. Theorin Gives Out a Statement Regarding Iron Mountain Saloon

In a statement made to the Brainerd Dispatch Sheriff Claus A. Theorin denies the whole story published in the Duluth News Tribune of July 29 which article was headed: "Vandals Drink All Liquor at Rex Bar, Iron Mountain Saloon Seized by Indian Agents, is Entered Despite Watchman."

Here is the opening paragraph of the story: "Iron Mountain, Minn., July 28.—When the Rex hotel bar, closed recently by order of the federal Indian agent, was reopened here it was discovered that vandals had eluded the watchman and drunk the liquor. The stock and fixtures were to be sold at sheriff's sale."

Sheriff Claus A. Theorin says that the Rex hotel bar was never closed by the Indian department. Its license, issued by the county, runs out in December of this year.

On July 12 the sheriff attached all hotel furniture and kitchen utensils, a half barrel of whiskey and a couple of cases of bottled goods, the suit in question being entitled W. L. Perkins vs John McNichols.

The law provides that no sale shall take place until judgment is taken, which requires twenty days, and ten days to advertise the sheriff's sale, which would carry the matter to the middle of August.

The second paragraph of the Duluth paper's story reads:

"Since H. A. Larson ordered the hotel closed, its owner, John McNichols, has been absent. The hotel was shuttered and barred and guarded by Policeman Peterson at night."

The sheriff states Indian Agent Larson never ordered the saloon closed. The hotel is not shuttered and barred. The saloon is in operation. There is no Policeman Peterson. There is, however, one Peterson hired as a custodian by Attorney T. C. Blewitt, attorney for Perkins who sued out the writ of attachment.

The third paragraph of the story reads:

"When the sheriff of Crow Wing county arrived, a crowd followed him into the musty bar. The room was in utter disorder. Bottles lay everywhere. The bar itself was cluttered with flasks and chairs lay promiscuously in every corner."

Sheriff Theorin says he has not been in Iron Mountain since July 12 when he served the writ of attachment and positively not on the date mentioned July 28. Not a bit of furniture was sold. Not even a notice of a sale has been posted.

This explanation is published by the sheriff in answer to the many inquiries made.

GERMAN SUBJECT ARRESTED

Caught in England With Forged American Passports.

London, July 30.—It was learned on high authority here that the British authorities have arrested a German subject who had in his possession a forged American passport which the arrested man admits is not genuine. The forged document has been compared with the original passport, which was issued to a bona fide American citizen.

The real passport, which was sent to London by the state department at Washington, shows that the forgery is a dangerous imitation.

The arrested man is understood to have declared that the false passport was given to him in Antwerp by Captain Schneider, a German secret service officer. The American state department is said to have taken up the question with the German government, as the imitation is so clever that it constitutes a danger to Americans abroad.

ONE YEAR OF THE GREAT WAR

AS SEEN IN ENGLAND

BY ED. L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(FIFTH STORY)

London, July 30.—England starts upon the second year of the great war with decided advantages over her position of twelve months ago.

She has command of the seas. She has an army, trained and in training, of nearly three million men. Her "expeditionary force" in France is now firmly entrenched in a position regarded as impregnable, even if the prospects of making a successful general offensive movement are not immediate. Her airmen have established beyond question their superiority in skill and daring over those of the enemy. She is building a great aerial fleet. She has at last begun with all the resources at her command, material and human, to manufacture a preponderating quantity of arms and ammunition—of the right sort. She has back of her a united nation and a united Empire.

The war found her unprepared not only from the military standpoint, but politically. The Liberal government was apparently riding for a fall. There had been all but mutiny in the army. The Irish had become more turbulent than ever. Sir Edward Carson had established his "Provisional Government of Ulster," and revolution was in sight. India was seething with sedition. Even Canada had shown signs of tiring of the restraint of mother's apron strings. Industrial unrest was at its height. Altogether things were in a very bad way.

Now most of the troubles have disappeared. Some of them remained longer than others, it is true. It has been a year of readjustment. Liberals and Conservatives, radicals and Tories, now sleep in the same bed. So far as the Irish disaffection, upon which the Kaiser counted so fondly—thanks to the lack of understanding on the part of his emissaries—is concerned, that vanished almost over night. It was a short way to Tipperary. Sir Edward Carson, whom they were about to lock up in the Tower, is now Attorney General of Great Britain, and John Redmond could be in the cabinet if he wanted to. One hundred and twenty-five thousand Irishmen have joined the King's army. Nationalists and unionists—75,000 of the former and 50,000 of the latter—instead of drenching Ireland with each other's blood are fighting side by side under the Union Jack.

Canada heard the call to arms and responded at once with 33,000 men to whom she had been adding regularly since. They—or rather what is left of them—are serving in the trenches along with Gurkhas from India. Australians and New Zealanders together with Welshmen and Scotchmen are engaged in the Dardanelles in one of the most valorous campaigns in the history of warfare. The sporadic uprising in South Africa has been suppressed, and the great mass of Boers against whom England conducted her unrighteous war fifteen years ago, with General Botha at their head, have conquered German Southwest Africa for England. Labor and capital have joined their forces in the conflict.

There has been much talk of conscription of late, both military and industrial. The leaders of the nation still believe England can win without either, and if the recent response of the manhood of the country is any criterion, they are right. But they are prepared for conscription, if that should prove to be the only solution. The national register scheme looks as if it were a step in that direction. The machinery for conscription is to be created, but only to be utilized in the gravest emergency.

Although she has lost her cocksureness, England has by no means lost hope. She realizes now that the struggle may be long and desperate. But the longer the better for her and her Allies in the end. Military writers, many of them, say Germany has now reached the maximum of her efficiency, while England has only got a good start toward that goal. With the boundless resources of the British Empire still to draw upon England believes ultimate victory for the allies can only be a question of time—if the spirit that now dominates England continues.

If it is to be a war of exhaustion, she says, then the odds are in favor of England and her allies.

AS SEEN IN GERMANY

CARL W. ACKERMAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(FIFTH STORY)

Berlin, July 30.—Germany's assets after a year's warfare can be summed up thus:

Possession of Russian Poland, Belgium and Northern France—territory as large and rich as New England and New York.

The Fatherland entirely free of the enemy, save for a small strip of Western Alsace.

Powerful and active submarine and Zeppelin fleets.

A tradition for the navy. An army still capable of offensive operations everywhere in the war theatres. And hundreds of thousands of men capable of bearing arms, not yet called to the colors.

Finances unimpaired—the only belligerent which has not borrowed heavily, openly or in secret, in foreign lands, and which has neither declared a moratorium or cancelled public debts.

A million citizens in neutral lands ready to return home and help Germany recuperate after the war.

Territory practically undamaged by the ravages of war. Germany's losses during the year's struggle are:

Over one half of her colonial empire captured. All her overseas commerce temporarily destroyed. Two hundred and fifty thousand soldiers killed. Expenditure of about $2,500,000,000.

The war has given Germany these heroes:

The Kaiser. Field Marshal von Hindenburg, who won the battle of the Mazurian Lakes, freed East Prussia from the Slavs and pricked the bubble of Russia's irresistible might.

Gen. von Haeseler, who led the German rush into France.

Lieut. von der Linden, who with 15 men captured a fort at Namar, Belgium, without firing a shot and permitted the Germans to begin the rout of the allies.

Commanded Otto Weddigen, of the submarine U-29, who sank four British cruisers in the North Sea and who finally met his death when his submarine was sunk by a British ship flying the Swedish flag.

Captain von Muecke, a Lieutenant of the famous sea-raider "Emden," who led the Cocos Island landing party from the Emden safely back to Berlin, after the Emden was sunk.

Admiral von Spee, who sank one British squadron and preferred to fight his own squadron off the Falklands until ships and crews went to the bottom, rather than surrender to an overwhelmingly superior British fleet.

The naval heroes equal those of the army. Germany believes the tradition established for her navy by the initiative, courage and ability of her sailors during the past year one of the most valuable benefits the war has conferred on her. The men who have died at sea for the Fatherland will have their names inscribed on imperishable rolls as a new inspiration for the Empire. When the present war broke the German navy was an untried instrument. It had learned all it knew of sea-fighting by maneuvers and study.

The war has demonstrated conclusively to Germany that man for man the English, with all their centuries of sea training, are not the equals of the Germans. One of the major surprises of the war is the comparative inefficiency of England's naval commanders. The manner in which Admiral Craddock allowed himself to be out-manuevered in the Chilean coast battle by Admiral von Spee, the futility of the English attempt to force the Dardanelles, and the disputes of the Admiralty in London, culminating in the open mutiny of Baron Fisher, are all believed by the Germans as representative incidents, showing British naval prestige has been permanently injured. The activities of the German submarines are among the most potent causes of German optimism as a new year of warfare begins. The Germans don't expect their undersea boats to destroy the English navy or so to reduce it as to permit the German high seas fleet to venture forth to battle. This belief did prevail for a short time after Admiral von Weddigen's exploits in the North Sea, but it is no longer held. Nevertheless the operations against England's merchant fleet are considered to be second only in importance to under sea attacks against warships themselves.

The Germans are convinced that the submarines have demoralized Britain's confidence. That is why the government will not abandon its submarine policy, no matter how long the war may go on.

AS SEEN IN FRANCE

WILLIAM PHILIP SIMMS
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
(FIFTH STORY)

Paris, July 30th.—One year ago tomorrow, the general mobilization order was posted in France calling the men to the colors. This was war today her leaders consider the crisis passed and that victory is only a question of time.

The Minister of War, M. Alexander Millerand, has announced that the German offensive is broken and that the defensive soon will be. Prime Minister Rene Viviani, in an interview granted me, declared German resources in money and supplies to be in a bad way, and M. Victor Augagneur, Minister of the Navy, has told me that Germany's submarine war cannot have any effect on the final issue.

France, therefore, is confident, but not over-confident. She realizes that there is yet much work to be done. She argues, however, that if Germany, with her flying start and an army in the pink of condition and at its maximum strength, could not shatter the French army, caught off its guard by a "brusque attack," for not only has France recovered from that sudden first blow when she stood alone to receive it, but is fitter now than at the start of the war.

The English are daily increasing in number and the Russian avalanche is considered inexhaustible. Any Frenchman, or Frenchwoman will tell you it is only a question of time.

France has astonished the world by her staying qualities, by her unanimity of purpose and by her accomplishments. Here are some of her deeds during the first year of the war:

She accomplished her own solidarity.

She frustrated Germany's original plan of campaign.

She won the victory of the Marne, saving Paris.

She defeated the German attempt to take Dunkirk, Calais, Boulogne and other English channel ports.

She forced the Germans to accept either retirement from France and Belgium or a winter campaign in trenches.

She completed the reorganization of her army, under way when war caught her.

She made an army of individuals, temperamentalists and thinkers into an army of tenacious veterans, two-to-one more efficient than at the outset of the war.

She banished the ghost of 1870. She learned to fight as the other fellow fights, by burrowing.

She retook part of Alsace, her lost province.

She stopped the Crow Prince at Verdun.

She held Nancy, the eastern gate to Paris.

She created heavy artillery, lacking at the start.

She ousted shirkers from safe positions back of the line and sent them to the trenches; and brought out of the trenches mechanics, engineers and others needed for war material factories.

She sent a large expeditionary force to the Dardanelles.

She bottled the Austrian fleet in the Adriatic just as England bottled the German fleet at Kiel, keeping the Mediterranean open.

She successfully launched all war financial measures.

She abolished absinthe and put other intoxicants under control.

She provided for the families of soldiers.

She cared for her own refugees and provided homes and nourishment for Belgians.

She placed women in men's jobs and kept the economic life of the country going.

She kept calm despite invasion of her territory; backed her soldiers with a patient, toiling, united citizenry; and, much to her credit, has yet to utter the first word of criticism against any one of her allies.

France was never so calm as now. She has suffered—and is still suffering cruelly—but she has not complained. Her feeling runs too deep for outward show thus revealing a little-known trait of the French.

Judging by what France has accomplished during the first year of the war, and by her present deadly calm, the powers of Central Europe have a hot time in store for them during the second year of the war, which begins Sunday.

PAY DAY AT THE MINES

MARINES SUFFER NO CASUALTIES

Landing Party in Hayti Encounters Resistance.

ADMIRAL FORWARDS REPORT

American Commander Says He Is Proceeding to Disarm Soldiers and Civilians and Asks for Reinforcements In Order to Properly Police Port au Prince.

Washington, July 30.—American marines landed at Port au Prince, Hayti, encountered resistance which was overcome without casualties among the sailors. The following message from Admiral Caperton was given out at the navy department: "Landing forces established in city. Slight resistance during early part of night as advance was being made. This resistance easily overcome. No casualties in our force. Am proceeding to disarm Haytian soldiers and civilians."

The message was the first intimation received by the navy department that Admiral Caperton's men from the cruiser Washington had met resistance. Previous dispatches merely said he had established his landing force ashore and placed a guard about the French legation. His first report, however, suggested that a regiment of marines be sent to Port au Prince to enable him to police the entire city.

Admiral's Force Increased.

Admiral Caperton's force was increased by the arrival of 100 marines from Guantanamo on the collier Jason.

In all he has available between 400 and 500 marines and bluejackets for shore duty, backed up by the guns of the cruiser. No arrangements have been made to send him additional marines.

The French cruiser Descartes reached Port au Prince from Cape Haytien. A small force from the United States survey yacht Eagle was landed at the latter place to guard the French consulate, which has opened its doors to refugees from Port au Prince.

Officials said no new instructions had been forwarded to Admiral Caperton and no representations had been made by the French government regarding the violation of the French legation at Port au Prince.

Men in Accident Near Devils Lake Are Pinioned by Auto.

Devils Lake, N. D., July 30.—Pinned under a heavy touring car from 8 p. m. until 9:30 a. m., Thomas Spice, sixty years old, a farmer living twenty miles northwest of Devils Lake, and Charles Mitchell, twenty-five years old, of Spooner, Wis., employed on the Spice farm, suffered injuries from which both died. When the car slipped off a grade and turned over the steering wheel pinned both men to the ground.

It was necessary to send fifteen miles for help to move the car and free the victims.

SHELLS DETERMINING FACTOR IN CONTEST.

London, July 30.—A Petrograd dispatch to Reuters' Telegram company says: "Now that the Germans are across the Narew river Russia is taking no chances. Together with her allies she realizes that the war is a long distance race; that shells, not men, are the determining factor and that time is necessary to recover her second wind."

Wanted Now

Right now, when hay fever is attacking its victims and when asthma is causing so much distress, there is a demand for Foley's Honey and Tar Compound—the remedy that brought relief to thousands in previous years. Don't continue to suffer. It will help you. Contains no opiates. H. P. Dunn, druggist.—Adv. mwf

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

Grandma kept her locks dark, glossy and thick with a simple mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustrous appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.

NEW GROCERY

I have opened a new grocery store at 109 Kindred street, where I will be pleased to greet all my friends and old customers. A fine line of staple and fancy groceries constantly on hand. Delivery to any part of city.
